CHAPTER XIX.

THE day before Christmas the warden of the port of Philadelphia, standing in hand on one of the wharfs, noticed a strange vessel coming up the bay. This in itself was not an unusual sight. Many vessels during the course of a year arrived at or departed from the chief city of the American continent. Not so many small traders or coasting vessels or ponderous East Indian men, perhaps, as in the busy times of peace before the war began, but their place was taken by privateers and their prizes, or a ship from France, bringing large consignments of war material from the famous house of Rodriguez and Co., of which the versatile and ingenious M. de Beaumarchais was the deus ex machina, and once in awhile one of the few ships of war of the Continental navy, or some of the galleys or gunboats of Commodore Hazelwood's Pennsylvania state defense fleet. But the approaching ship was evidently neither a privateer nor a vessel of war; neither did she present the appearance of a peaceful merchantman.

There was something curious and noteworthy in her aspect which excited the attention of the port warden, and then of the loungers along Front street and the wharfs, and speedily communicated itself to the citizens of the town, so that they began to hasten down to the river in the cold of the late afternoon. Finally no less a person than the military commander of the city himself appeared, followed by one or two aids and attended by various bewigged and bearded gentlemen of condition and substance, among whose flimsy black coat of a clergyman and the sober attire of many of the thrifty Quakers were conspicuous. Here and there the crowd was lightened by the uniform of a militiaman or home guard or the faded buff and blue of some invalid or wounded Continental. In the doorways of some of the spacious residences facing the river many of the fair dames for which Philadelphia was justly famous noted eagerly the approaching ship. As she came slowly up against the ebb tide it was seen that her bulwarks had been cut away; all her boats but one appeared to be lost; her mizzen topgallant mast was gone; several dark patches in her sails also attracted attention. There, too, was a fieldpiece mounted and lashed on the quarter deck as a stern chaser. The fore royal was furled, and two flags were hanging limply from the masthead, the light breeze from time to time fluttering them a little, but not sufficiently to disclose what they were until just opposite High street, where she dropped her only remaining anchor, when a sudden gust of wind lifted the two flags before the anxious spectators, who saw that one was a British and the other their own ensign. As soon as the eager watchers grasped the fact that the red cross of St. George was beneath the stars and stripes they broke into spontaneous cheers of rejoicing. Immediately after the field gun on the quarter deck was fired, and the report reverberated over the water and across the island on the one side and through the streets of the town on the other with sufficient volume to call every belated and idle citizen to the river front at once.

Immediately after a small boat was dropped into the water and manned by four stout seamen, into which two officers rapidly descended—one in the uniform of a soldier and the other in naval attire. When they reached the wharf at the foot of High street they found themselves confronted by an excited, shouting mass of anxious men, eager to hear the news they were without doubt bringing.

"It's Lieutenant Seymour!" cried one.

"Yes, he went off in the Ranger about two weeks ago," answered another.

"So he did. I wonder where the Ranger is now."

"Who is the one next to him?" said a third.

"That's the young Continental from General Washington's staff who went with him," answered a fourth voice.

"Back, gentlemen, back!"

"Way for the general commanding the town!"

"Here, men, don't crowd this way on the honorable committee of congress!" cried one and another, as a stout, burly, red faced, honest, genial looking man, whose uniform of a general officer could not disguise his plain farmer-like appearance, attended by two or three staff officers and followed by several white wigged gentlemen of great dignity, the rich attire and the evident respect in which they were held proclaiming them the committee of congress, slowly forced their way through the crowd.

"Now, sirs," cried the general officer to the two men who had stepped out on the wharf, "what ship is that? We are prepared for good news, seeing those two flags, and the Lord knows we need it."

"That is the transport Mollish, sir; a prize of the American Continental ship Ranger, Captain John Paul Jones."

"Hurrah! Hurrah!" cried the crowd, which had eagerly pressed near to hear the news.

"Good, good!" replied the general. "I congratulate you. How is the Ranger?"

"We left her about 100 leagues off Cape Sable about a week ago. She had just sunk the British sloop of war Juno, twenty-two guns, after a night action of about forty minutes. We left the Ranger bound for France and apparently not much injured."

"What, what! God bless me, young man, you don't mean it! Sunk her, did you say, and in forty minutes? Gentlemen, gentlemen, do you hear that? Three cheers for Captain John Paul Jones!"

Just then one of the committee of congress and evidently its chairman, a man whose poverty and honor shone out from his open, pleasant face, interrupted:

"But tell me, young sir—Lieutenant Seymour of the navy, is it not? Ah, I thought so. What is her name? Is it the transport we have hoped for?"

"Yes, sir, Lieutenant Talbot here has her bills of lading and her manifest also."

"Where is it, Mr. Talbot?" interrupted the officer. "Let me see it, sir. I am General Putnam, in command of the city."

The general took the paper in his eagerness, but as he had neglected to bring his glasses with him he was unable to read it.

"Here, here!" he cried impatiently, handing it back. "Read it yourself or, better, tell us quickly what it is."

"Two thousand stand of arms, twenty fieldpieces, powder, shot and other munitions of war, 10,000 suits of winter clothes, blankets, shoes, Colonel Seaton and three officers and fifty men of the Seaforth highlanders and their baggage, all en route for Quebec," said Talbot promptly.

The crowd was one seething mass of excitement. Robert Morris turned about and, lifting his hat from his head, waved it high in the air amid frantic cheers. Putnam and his officers and the other gentlemen of the committee of congress seized the hands of the two young officers in hearty congratulation.

"But there is something still more to tell," cried Mr. Morris—"your ship, her battered and dismantled condition, the rents in the sails! You were chased?"

"Yes, sir," replied Seymour, "and nearly recaptured. We escaped, however, through a narrow channel extending across George's shoal, off Cape Cod, with which I was familiar. And the English ship, pursuing recklessly, ran upon the shoal in a gale of wind and was wrecked, lost with all on board."

"Is it possible, sir—is it possible? Did you find out the name of the ship?"

"Yes, sir; one of our seamen who had served aboard her recognized her. She was the Radnor, thirty-six guns."

"That's the ship that Lord Dunmore is reported to have returned to Europe in," said Mr. Clymer, another member of the committee. A shudder passed over the two young men at this confirmation of their misfortune. Seymour continued with great gravity:

"We have reason to believe that some one else in whom you have deeper interest than in Lord Dunmore was on board of her—Colonel Wilton, one of our countrymen, to France, and his daughter also. They must have perished with the rest."

There was a moment of silence as the full extent of this calamity was made known to the multitude, and then a clergyman was seen pushing his way nearer to them.

"What! Mr. Seymour! How do you do, sir? Did I understand you to say that all the company of that English ship perished?"

"Yes, Dr. White."

"And Colonel Wilton and his daughter also?"

"Alas, yes, sir!"

"I fear that it is as our young friend says," added Robert Morris gloomily. "I remember they were to go with Dunmore."

"Oh, Mr. Morris, our poor friends! Shocking, shocking, dreadful!" ejaculated the clergyman.

"Lieutenant Seymour of the navy, is it not?"

lated the saintly looking man; "these are the horrors of war," and then turning to the multitude, he said: "Gentlemen, people and friends, it is Christ-mas eve. We have our usual services at Christ church in a short time. Shall we not then return thanks to the Giver of all victory for this signal manifestation of his providence at this dark hour, and at the same time pray for our bereaved friends, and also for the widows and orphans of those of our enemies who have been so suddenly brought before their Maker? I do earnestly invite you all to God's house in his name."

Store and Residence Burned.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., June 29.—The grocery store, residence and barn of Harry Hayes were destroyed by fire and the family had a narrow escape. It is supposed a spark from a passing train set fire to the barn. The loss is $2,000; insurance, $500.

It Was a False Alarm.

Evansville, Ind., June 29.—The police have ceased hunting for the colored man accused of assaulting a young white girl. They found that there was nothing in the girl's story and the story told by her white escort was not true.

WAITING FOR NEWS

Imminence of Great Battle
Throws St. Petersburg
Into a Fever.

NOTHING BUT RUMORS

While It Is Known That Two Strong
Forces Are Facing Each Other
No Word Comes.Preliminary Fighting at Dalin Hill
Resulted in Another Japanese Victory.

St. Petersburg, June 29.—No further advice from the front have been received, though news from General Kuropatkin and Rear Admiral Witthoft (in command of the naval force at Port Arthur) is eagerly awaited. The usual rumors of heavy fighting pervaded the city, but they are based wholly on the fact that the armies are in close touch.

Though it appears now from General Kuropatkin's tactics that a heavy engagement may be deferred for some days, it is possible that the Japanese may rush matters, but it is not generally expected here that General Kuropatkin will give battle until he reaches a position of his own selection.

It may clarify the military situation to explain that the country in which the armies are now coming into contact consists of a series of mountain chains running parallel with the railroad, alongside of which the Russians are falling back as the Japanese advance.

Pen Shui, Motien and Dalin are all passes which take their names from the mountains over which they run. General Kuropatkin, who has heretofore been east of these mountains, is advancing to the westward from Su Yen through a very rough country and his columns must traverse the passes named before emerging into the more open country along the railroad.

Approximately abreast of Ta Tche Kiao, Hal Cheng and Liao Yang. The Russian outposts and the Japanese advance are now in close touch at all these passes. The Russians after harassing the Japanese advance from each of these positions, are falling back on General Kuropatkin's main body, which is supposed to be somewhere between Liao Yang and Ta Tche Kiao.

General Kuropatkin is now moving slowly northward along the railroad, and wherever he makes his stand there will be precipitated what is expected to be the decisive battle of the campaign. In the meantime General Oku is advancing along the railroad on the heels of the withdrawing Russians. He is backed by a powerful army. How large a portion of this army he has detached to join Gen. Kuropatkin has not been developed, but it is probably large enough to add material severity to the fighting before the Russians finally abandon the mountains.

There is the greatest eagerness for news from Port Arthur, but nothing concerning the situation there is known.

A report that Rear Admiral Witthoft, in command of the naval forces at Port Arthur, sailed off after giving battle to the Japanese, receives considerable credence. Witthoft is known to have full authority to leave Port Arthur if he deems it advisable, and he possibly he prefers not risking a return to the harbor, which might again be blocked, preventing his egress at a critical moment. Consequently Witthoft may now be steaming to join the Vladivostok cruisers.

DETAILS OF BATTLE

Japs Score Marked Success in the Dalin Hill Fight.

Hal Cheng, June 29.—The total losses in the Dalin Hill fight are not yet known. Eighty wounded have arrived here and a hospital train with 200 passed going to Liao Yang. The fighting lasted the whole of June 26 and June 27 and the Japanese successively pushed the Russians from three positions, occupying them with artillery as the defenders retired.

Wounded Russians recounting the two days' fight say that the Japanese again demonstrated their reliance on their artillery and that they were greatly superior, both in number of man and in guns. On the second day of the fight they brought up a heavy battery which silenced the lighter Russian guns and caused severe loss. The Japanese artillery practice, however, was inaccurate and, as is usual, they several times shelled empty positions or shot over the Russian columns.

The fight started at dawn, ten miles southwest of Dalin Hill. A Russian rifle brigade held the position until noon in the face of a heavy artillery fire, but the Russians were generally outflanked by infantry and cavalry, the Japanese actually getting a field battery in the rear of the Russian position. Then the brigade fell back. The Dalin Hill fight continued from 4 o'clock until dark.

The Japanese worked furiously all night long and replaced two batteries on the vacated Russian position. The fighting was resumed at 3 a. m., on June 27. The Russians silenced the two Japanese batteries, but the Japanese brought up a train of big guns and silenced the lighter Russian artillery, which was again running out of ammunition, and the Russians were once more forced to retire. The Japanese cavalry and infantry, threatening to surround the Russian position, forced a general retreat.

The Russians carried off all their guns and got revenge on the Japanese cavalry column, which was caught in close formation and was shelled with terrific effect, being forced to scatter.

A Shift in Scene.

Hal Cheng, June 29.—The war picture has quickly changed, thanks to General Kuropatkin's movements. A heavy engagement is expected today near the village of Si Mou Cheng, fifteen miles south-southeast of Hal Cheng and an equal distance due east of the railroad. The Japanese have now passed Dalin Hill and are twenty miles south of the Russian position.

NEW TRIAL REFUSED

Wife Murderer Knapp to Be Electro-cuted in Ohio.

Hamilton, Ohio, June 29.—The Ohio supreme court has set aside the decision of the circuit court, granting Alfred A. Knapp, the Indianapolis stranger, a new trial. The court restored the verdict of the common pleas court, holding Knapp guilty of murder in the first degree for killing his wife, Hannah Goddard Knapp. This means that Knapp will get no new trial, but will be sentenced to death at once.

The supreme court fixed Aug. 19 as the day on which Knapp shall be electrocuted. The circuit court granted the motion for a new trial on the ground that Knapp's confession should not have been admitted as evidence.

IT'S UP TO MILES

If He Can Say Shibboleth the Third Party Nomination Is His.

WANT TO PIN HIM DOWN

Extreme Wing of the Party Demands of Prospective Nominee a Flat
Declaration of Principles.No Equivocal Stand on the Question
Will Be Accepted If They Know Themselves.

Indianapolis, June 29.—If General Nelson A. Miles will definitely subscribe to three brief declarations of a sentence, each addressed to him by leaders in the Prohibition party, the Prohibition national convention, which convened in Tomlinson hall at 10 o'clock this morning, will, figuratively speaking, hand him the presidential nomination on a silver platter Thursday noon, when, according to the schedule, the presidential nomination will be made.

The declarations are intended to "smoke out" the retired officer, who, it is charged by the anti-Miles element of the party, has been trying to dodge a flat-footed expression of his belief. They are incorporated in the following manifesto which was issued and scattered broadcast after a caucus held in the Claypool:

"To the gentlemen leading the movement to nominate General Miles—Those of us who doubt the wisdom of your course believe that we are not so far separated from each other as we may seem to be. We all want to reach victory at the earliest date and in the best way possible. We desire to emphasize the fact that we have the utmost faith in the earnest intention and the most worthy motives of those who are advocating the nomination of General Miles. We offer the following in the sincere hope of reaching harmonious action:

"We grant that General Miles could lead us very acceptably during the pending campaign, providing a few basic principles of the Prohibition party are accepted by him. They underlie the whole philosophy of the Prohibition party movement, and we believe it is absolutely essential that our candidate should stand upon them unqualifiedly.

"Some such statement as the following will meet those conditions:

"1. I believe that the solution of the liquor problem is the greatest problem now before the American people.

"2. I believe that the Prohibition party offers the only solution of that problem.

"3. It is my present purpose to stand with that party politically.

"Unless some such declaration as the above in his own language can be secured from General Miles, we are strongly impressed with the serious political danger now confronting our party. In case of your inability to secure some definite declaration as outlined, may we not hope that you will join with us in the conclusion that such a nomination would not be wise for the Prohibition party to make?"

"If General Miles will subscribe to these declarations and define his stand, it will all be over but the shouting," said one prominent leader after the caucus, and when the printed copies of the manifesto had been distributed. "And there will be plenty of shouting, for we will all gladly join in giving him a most enthusiastic support. We know that Miles is a good man and a Prohibitionist at heart and by practice. His record shows this, but we want him to say that he believes in Prohibition as a political issue, and the Prohibition party as a necessity in promoting the best interests of the movement."

The anti-Miles people adopted the course they did in order to forestall effectively any plan to stampede the convention to Miles by his supporters indulging in generalities instead of definite statements as to how Miles does stand. It is trusted his supporters will reach Miles with the declarations, though he is supposed to be lost to all mankind and especially to the Prohibitionist party until after the Indianapolis convention adjourns. If he fails to accede to them the opponents will have their candidate ready to spring, but who he is has not been decided on yet.

Syracuse Did Well.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 29.—Cornell's supremacy is broken and the Syracuse men are in a state of hilarious delight, for in two out of the three races on the Poughkeepsie course yesterday, the only races in which she was entered, the crews of Syracuse university won victory from the sons of Cornell. In the four-mile eight-oar race the Syracuse eamers won by handsome margins. Cornell won the four-oar varsity race with ease.

SATISFACTORY OUTLOOK

Republican Leaders Much Pleased

With Conditions in Indiana.

Indianapolis, June 29.—An important conference of Republican leaders was held last evening at Republican state headquarters to outline plans for the coming campaign. Those present were all the candidates on the Republican state ticket, Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge, State Chairman Goodrich and Secretary Sims of the state committee. No definite action was taken on any point, but it was the consensus of the conferees that the speaking part of the campaign in Indiana should be opened on or about Sept. 25. The opening meeting will doubtless be held in this city and the speakers will include the two senators and J. Frank Hanly, candidate for governor. The men present at this meeting, who are naturally most deeply interested in the campaign this year, were agreed that the outlook is extremely satisfactory. Local conditions in every district are all that could be desired, the state organization is in excellent shape for an aggressive fight, and the party workers throughout the state are enthusiastic and anxious to get into the campaign. The work in Indiana this year will be made much easier because of the nomination of Senator Fairbanks for vice president, for the distinguished Indianan on the national ticket will mean several thousand votes to the ticket that might not otherwise be polled. The senator will give considerable of his time to this state, although there will be a tremendous demand made on him from all sections of the country, and during the latter part of the campaign it is expected that he will make a "swing around the circle" similar to that made by Roosevelt four years ago as the vice presidential candidate. Mr. Hanly, as the head of the state ticket, will bear the brunt of the fight in the state, and he said yesterday that he hoped to be able to speak in every county before the close of the campaign.

Senator Beveridge will take an unusually prominent part in the Indiana campaign this year. Heretofore, while devoting much time to his own state, he has been in great demand by the national committee and has been used in almost every state. This year, however, he has determined that the Indiana state committee shall have the first call on his services and he will make few if any speeches except to his own constituency. At a conference of Republican leaders yesterday it was learned that the national congressional committee is planning a special feature for the campaign this fall in which an Indiana man will participate. Recognizing Speaker Cannon's popularity and his strength as a vote-getter, the congressional committee purposes to send him across the country on a special train toward the close of the campaign. With him will be several of the best speakers in the house, and among those who have been invited to make the trip is Congressman James E. Watson of Rushville, who presided as chairman of the recent Republican state convention and sounded the keynote.

The Prohibitionists are holding the center of the political stage in the Indiana capital at present. Their national convention has attracted an unexpectedly large crowd and the delegates and visitors have more enthusiasm in proportion to their numbers than is manifested at the national councils of either of the great parties. The contest for their presidential nomination is sufficiently lively to satisfy the most exacting that there is no apathy within the Prohibition ranks, and it has shown that the "Prohis" know how to play politics as well as Republicans and Democrats do. The fight seems to be narrowing down to a struggle between the advocates of the nomination of General Miles and the followers of Tate of Tennessee, with the chances in favor of the latter.

Banker Will Be Sentenced.

Goshen, Ind., June 29.—Rollin Ellison, the private banker in Lagrange and Topeka, Ind., whose two institutions failed last fall with a loss of about $200,000 to the depositors, pleaded guilty to embezzlement before Special Judge Dausman in the circuit court here. Ellison will be sentenced before the court term ends, July 9. Under the law he can be fined double the amount embezzled and sent to the penitentiary for from one to three years.

Franco Demands Punishment.

Paris, June 29.—The French cruiser Jurien de la Graviere has been ordered by the ministry of marine to proceed to Hayti. The officials here say the purpose is to insist on the punishment of those guilty of the outrage against M. Duprez, the French minister who was stoned by the palace guards at Port au Prince recently while driving with the minister of Germany, besides the apology already tendered.

The New Albany Public Press, one of the most radical democratic papers in Indiana says: "The republican party has named its strongest presidential ticket. Roosevelt and Fairbanks will be a hard pair to beat."

MANY prohibitionists will probably be surprised when they read the interview of Oliver W. Stewart, national chairman of the prohibition party organization, in which he says: "Persons who think that the prohibition party is a temperance party are mistaken. It is a political party whose basic principle is its opposition to the liquor traffic. We have in our ranks tobacco smokers, chewers and drinkers of every sort of intoxicants, but they are prohibitionists just the same and vote the prohibition ticket. To be a prohibitionist does not imply that one is a total abstainer." To a great many people this statement of the national prohibition chairman will seem a bit inconsistent to say the least.

INHALED CHLOROFORM.

Daughter of Mrs. Mary Cline, of this City, Commits Suicide.

Mrs. Grace Cline Wasson, the wife of Henry Wasson, committed suicide at their home in Indianapolis Tuesday by inhaling chloroform. Mrs. Wasson was the daughter of Mrs. Mary Cline, who keeps house for her nephew, Marshall Davis, on North Blush street. She and Mr. Davis went to Indianapolis today to attend the funeral.

According to reports in Indianapolis papers Mrs. Wasson had told the lady with whom she and her husband boarded that she was worried, because she did not see how she could keep from breaking up another woman's home. It is alleged that she and Frank Taylor, a married man, were in love and that he wanted her to leave Indianapolis with him, but she declined to go. It seems that as she thought over the matter she became despondent and concluded to end her life. Mrs. Wasson was 20 years old and had been married two or three years.

CANINE MEMORY.

The Story of a Pet Bull Terrier That Did Not Forget.

A gentleman who is a great traveler and who is always accompanied in his wanderings by a bull terrier, to which he is much attached, arrived one day in the city of Florence. His dog was for some reason intrusted to the care of the porter at the station, and in the excitement of being separated from his master, who generally kept the animal with him, Bruno was moved to make his escape. The most careful search was made, and before going to his hotel the traveler went to the police station to notify the gentlemen of his loss. It was more than an hour before he reached his hotel. When he got there he spoke of his loss, so that if anything was heard of the dog it would be understood that the animal belonged to him. To his astonishment the porter said: "But your dog is here, sir. He came before you, and we did not know to whom he belonged." "The dog is here?" repeated the gentleman in surprise. "How came he here?" "He ran in, sir, about half an hour ago, and, after sniffing about the office for awhile, he ran upstairs. I gave orders to have him driven out, but the boys have been busy, and he is up there somewhere now." The traveler, of course, went upstairs at once, and there on the mat before the chamber numbered 44 lay Bruno, who sprang up with the most frantic demonstrations of delight at finding his master again. The gentleman remembered that two years previous he had been with the dog at Florence and had stayed at this hotel. He did not remember that he had occupied this particular room, but on reference to the hotel register such was found to be the fact.

FREETOWN COMMENCEMENT.

Saltcreek Township Schools Graduate Sixteen Pupils.

The fourteenth annual commencement of Saltcreek township schools was held at Freetown Thursday night, June 23.

There was a large crowd in attendance and the best of order prevailed. The class consisted of sixteen graduates, eight girls and eight boys.

This is the largest class that has ever been graduated from this township. One of its members, George D. McLean, made the highest grade that was ever made in this county for graduation.

The stage was artistically decorated and with the semi-circle of graduates formed a very pretty picture.

Miss Lillie Lutes was chosen by the judges, Prof. Will Nelson and Rev. Sheldon, to represent the class in the oratorical contest to be held at Brownstown in August.

Prof. Payne presented the diplomas to the class in his usual pleasing manner.

Reading His Own Works.

I only once heard Thackeray allude to his works and that in a serious spirit, which amused both him and us. "I was traveling on the Rhine," he said (in company no doubt with "the Kickleburgs"), "and encountering one of the hotels on the banks, exhausted and weary, I went into the saloon and threw myself on a sofa. There was a book on a little table close by, and I opened it to find it was 'Vanity Fair.' I had not seen it since I corrected the proofs, and I read a chapter. Do you know it seemed to me very amusing?"—Dean Hole's "Memories."

Revolution Imminent.

A sure sign of approaching revolt and serious trouble in your system is nervousness, sleeplessness, or stomach upsets. Electric Bitters will quickly dismember the troublesome causes. It never fails to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, and clarify the blood. Run down systems benefit particularly and all the usual attending aches vanish under its searching and thorough effectiveness. Electric Bitters is only 50c, and that is returned if it doesn't give perfect satisfaction. Guaranteed by W. F. Peter Drug Co.

There are many enthusiastic citizens in Seymour prepared to tell their experience for the public good. Testimony from such a source is the best of evidence and will prove a "helping hand" to scores of readers. Read the following statement:

Mrs. L. T. Correll, of 706 Brown street says: "I derived great benefit from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills sold by C. W. Milbous' the druggist. My son, also suffered a great deal from his kidneys and the use of Doan's Kidney Pills built him right up and after taking them he had no further annoyance. My husband suffered much from a lame back and did not sleep well nights on account of the pain and a kidney weakness. He remarked the other day that he never had medicine do him so much good as Doan's Kidney Pills did. I have no hesitation whatever in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity which occurs."

The Plymouth Tribune Wins in an Action Brought to Suppress Its Publication.

Indianapolis, June 29.—The refusal of the Marshall circuit court to forbid the printing of the Plymouth Tribune on new presses and the distribution of the paper to former subscribers of the Plymouth Republican and the Plymouth Evening News, until the debts of the latter papers should be paid was affirmed by the appellate court yesterday. Wm. G. Hendricks had owned and controlled the latter papers, but was heavily in debt for the plant, the debts being secured by mortgages on the printing presses, type, etc.

After he had used the mortgaged property about three years Hendricks quit business and abandoned the publication of his newspapers, offering to surrender all his property to the mortgagees. The same day the publication of daily and weekly editions of the Tribune was begun in the name of his wife, with Hendricks as business manager. The office which the Republican and Evening News had occupied was used for the Tribune, but it was furnished with new presses, type and furniture bought by Mrs. Hendricks. The persons who had sold the other papers to Hendricks and taken a mortgage as security sued to enjoin the new publications, but were unsuccessful.

CAUGHT NAPPING

Alleged Horse Thieves Taken by a Posse Near Bunker Hill.

Kokomo, Ind., June 29.—Perry and Henry Tyler, horse thieves, who are wanted in a number of Indiana cities, are in jail here, having been captured by Patrolman Lane of the Kokomo police. Special Officer Lindley and a posse of Bunker Hill citizens.

The Tylers camped in a ravine near Bunker Hill, and were asleep when the officers and citizens surrounded them. No opportunity was given for resistance. The men are charged with stealing two horses and buggies from hitching racks in the business quarters of Kokomo last week. None of the stolen property was recovered, with the exception of a lap-robe that had been in one of the buggies.

Perry Tyler has been out of the penitentiary but a few weeks, having been sent there three years ago from this city for horse stealing. This is Henry Tyler's first time under arrest.

Grave Wasn't Needed.

Laporte, Ind., June 29.—Fred Wheatbrook of this county received a telegram that his son, William Wheatbrook, had died in a Chicago hospital. The grave was dug, the clergyman engaged and the mourners went to the train to meet the party. Then it developed that young Wheatbrook was not dead and the investigation which is now being conducted by the officers has failed to find any trace of the young man's whereabouts. The family fears that he is a victim of foul play.

Logansport, Ind., June 29.—Mrs. Rebecca Wolf, an aged woman, was the victim of a murderous assault at the hands of masked robbers at her home in Clifton avenue, this city, and as a result of the injuries she received it is thought she will die. The woman's screams attracted attention and the arrival of neighbors scared the robbers away before they had succeeded in compelling her to reveal the hiding place of her money.

Postponement of Gillespie Case.

Indianapolis, June 29.—The supreme court has postponed consideration of the motion for an immediate hearing in the James Gillespie habeas corpus case until all briefs shall have been filed.
